Passerby Saves Kellogg Home From Fire

Greenwood— The timely passing of a neighbor prevented the residence of William G. Kellogg of Greenwood, county superintendent of highways, from burning to the ground. It is believed that the blaze originated from a chimney which was burning out and that the roof then caught fire.

Mr. Clark was going by the Kellogg home at about 1:30 in the afternoon and noticed flames shooting through the roof. He spread the alarm and hand fire-extinguishers, brought from the homes of neighbors, were used to subdue the blaze on the third floor.

Damage, including a huge hole in the roof, amounted to about $300. The property was insured.

Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Leach, daughter Alenda and son Matt and Myron Leach were Christmas guests of Mrs. Leach's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Bardwell in Canaseraga.

Article By Dr. Stiker in Dental Digest

Addison Dentist is Author of Unique Presentation Upon Subject of Immediate Denture, Appearing in Outstanding Professional Journal Of National Circulation.

Dr. Amos G. Stiker, Addison dentist, who is recognized as an authority upon immediate dentures and who has lectured frequently during the past several months before dental societies of New York and Pennsylvania cities, is the author of a most unique pictorial presentation upon the subject of "Immediate Dentures for the Average Dentist", appearing in the "Dental Digest", a professional journal published at Pittsburgh, Pa.

In a series of forty-four photographs, attractively arranged and with a brief explanation beneath each one, Dr. Stiker has successfuly set forth, in an easily understandable way, the correct method of making artificial teeth in a manner which permits insertion less than five minutes after the natural teeth have been taken out. Although the photographs were not sent to the publication until well into November and publication in the next issue following was not planned at first, the editors wrote to Dr. Stiker that owing to the strikingly different method of presentation and the impression which it had already made among members of the profession, publication would be advanced to the December issue and that it would be given the featured position in the first four pages of reading matter.

THE HOPE OF 1935

Anything which is new, contains the seeds of hope. A new child starting in school has the world before him; a new firm starting in business holds hope of mounting success; the new bride entering her new home holds high hopes for a happy married life. So it is with all of us entering on a New Year, we pause on the threshold with a feeling of hope that what lies before us may be better than what is just behind.

Most everyone has been struggling along under a hard load through the past five years. Since the first we have lived on the hope that the beginning of each twelve-month period would mark the end of the depression. The fact that we have been able to hold to this hope is one of the reasons we have come through so far, with as few scars as we now carry. The longer we can cling to the hope for better things in the coming year, the better will we be able to revive when recovery actually comes, whenever it does.

A prominent man in the world of finance, a former vice-president of the United States, has predicted that 1935 will see the end of the depression. Perhaps he is right, and then again perhaps his prophecy, like many others, will not hit the mark. But regardless of the year, or month, or week we definitely decide we are out of the woods and back on sound ground of recovery, it is going to help to be able to harbor the hope this period is going to witness real betterment. We know that every month we travel the hard road is another step towards better times. We have always recovered and unless some measure is taken too desperate for us to overcome, we shall tread again the heights from which we have fallen.

We are a resilient nation. We may for a time listen to the uninspiring tale of the fatalists who tell us our civilization has reached a saturation point and we must curtail production to live. But once the wheels of industry start humming, all that nonsense will be forgotten. We demand more of life than the bare necessities of living, and through our ambitious demands we shall build our economic structure back to prosperity heights. Perhaps it will be in 1935 that confidence will return, the demand for goods increase and the wheels of industry will start turning to bring men back to work. It is a worthwhile hope that 1935 may be the turning epoch; a step towards brighter, happier days which are surely ahead.

A "KINGFISH MUZZLED PRESS"

Seven Louisiana State University students were recently expelled from the journalism school for signing a petition for freedom of the campus press. The petition came as a student outburst of indignation over Huey Long's censorship of the college paper "Reveille".

Here is an unusual situation indeed. Colleges have often imposed a certain amount of censorship upon school papers the student editors of which were inclined to step beyond the bounds of propriety, but who has seen students expelled during the past hundred and fifty years, for criticising a politician like the "kingfish"? The crux of the whole situation is found in the fact Senator Long has complete control over the state of Louisiana, control so complete university officials hasten to throw out students who have the temerity to raise a word of criticism in a college paper.

Probably this case of injustice to students has never found parallel in the annals of American education. It speaks of political despotism in a language every citizen of this land should be able to understand. Huey Long has such tyrannical control of the government in his state the opposition is powerless to interpose any resistance. In a country where freedom of speech and freedom of the press have been closely guarded, a United States senator is able to make the press within a certain area keep silent regarding his own atrocious behavior.

This news from Louisiana makes plain to all who would read the sign, two things. In any land operating under a two-party type of government, it is extremely dangerous for one party to be overwhelmingly in control continuously. Limiting in any way the freedom of the press is a dangerous thing for the governed, as politicians guarded from criticism are quick to extend their powers. This latest story of "kingfish" control, should be a warning to every liberty loving citizen in the land.

As for Stanley Schlosman, Sam Montague and the other five Louisiana students who had the courage to "pan" Huey Long in their college paper, they should be able to land newspaper jobs without difficulty, even in a time of depression. Newspapers are still on the look-out for intelligent young writers who think enough of their calling to stand for right principles of government in the face of politicians of the "kingfish" type. Some of these boys will yet be heard from. And before Huey hears the last of this episode he may learn it turned a definite point in his career, a career so obnoxious, so nauseating none but the most repellant types of politicians can accept him.

A CRIME WAVE

Attorney General Cummings' four-day conference on crime reminds us again of the magnitude of this nefarious business—American crime, but does not furnish a sure remedy.

Indeed, only one remedy could possibly be found which might cure this appaling situation with one stroke. There are too many ramifications, too many avenues of escape for the criminal and too many sources of revenue for a single conference to cure such a long festering, intolerable sore. The loudest advocates of prohibition repeal were telling us a couple of years ago that only by restoration of legal beverages could the criminal be cut from his source of rich revenue, and the crime uprising stopped. Yet, a year's experience since repeal has failed to lessen the activities of our gangsters. In fact bootlegging, by admission of government officials, is still rampant and the papers were never so full of kidnaping and extortion stories as through 1934. Perhaps there was less high-jacking of beer trucks, less shooting of gangsters by one another, while the under-world seemed to settle into a more united war against organized society.

One good sign during the past twelve months, was the militant attitude of the federal agency for detection of crime. A change in the law which allowed federal agents to pit weapon against weapon with the criminal has at last given the former a fighting chance in the war against crime. Agents of keen intellect have been carefully trained for the intensive hunt of desperate criminals, while the Lindbergh law and other statutes have permitted federal men to cross state lines which once made barriers of easy escape for the law breakers.

There are still many aids to harden the lawbreaker which make his career a continuing menace to the honest public. He is still allied to a host of unscrupulous lawyers who take large sums of his stolen money, to squeeze him through loop-holes in the law. He is still able to grease the palms of countless questionable policemen who shut one eye as his crimes are committed. He still is able to fatten the purse of many cheap politicians to buy immunity from officials, jails and judges.

All of these avenues of escape making it possible for the criminal to continue to prey upon society, are based on the enormous sums of negotiable money he is able to take from his victims. Cut the criminal off from all negotiable money for a period of six months and the American crime problem could be solved! How could this be done? It would not be easy, yet it could be accomplished by a universal, country-wide campaign of elimination.

First, let Congress provide for a census to be taken this year, utilizing unemployed persons for enumerators. Make this census a radical step in enumerating by requiring every person in the country to be finger-printed. That would identify and provide for deportation of a vast number of undesirable aliens in the first place, which would help materially in the halting of crime. But that would not be the ultimate end.

Let Congress call out of circulation all the present negotiable currency larger than dollar bills. Let it issue in its place currency, backed by treasury gold, that would require every person using it to sign his or her name and annex finger prints before passing it on. Augment this identification currency with additional coinage of silver for use in small transactions.

This would be a harsh remedy and cause everyone a huge amount of annoyance, but it would definitely shut the criminal, the "fence" go-between, the protection lawyer, the crooked politician from means of illicit living. It would cost millions of dollars, but in a year's time it would save billions of the nation's crime bill. It would make every person taking money of any considerable sum, become sure of whom he received the funds, and guarantee the source when he cashed the certificate. It would make crime the most unpopular pastime in the country and rid us surely of an element which is a national menace.

The National Industrial Conference Board made a nation-wide survey on current issues of major importance. All newspaper and farm journal editors of the United States were asked 22 questions. The one on which 5,050 editors came closest to agreeing that public sentiment is united was as follows:

"Would public opinion in your community favor making sympathetic strikes and lockouts illegal?"

For the entire country, 75.8 per cent of the editors replied that public sentiment would favor a legal ban on sympathetic strikes and lockouts.

Political observers say this is the most convincing poll ever taken of public opinion on public strikes and lockouts, and they believe it will have a strong influence upon any bill that may be introduced in Congress intended to prohibit such strikes and lockouts.

MOUNT MORRIS — State police and deputy sheriffs are searching for a man who succeeded in passing two worthless checks and made an attempt to pass another about the village.

The Livingston County sheriff's office was called upon last Friday to help in solving a series of chicken robberies in the village of Leicester. The officers were fortunate to track the thieves from the place in the fresh snow but soon lost track when the robbers made their getaway in an auto. They were later apprehended, however.

Republican State Chairman Is Praised For New Type Leadership

Albany, N. Y., Dec. 26—Newspaper reports of political gatherings are not always complete. Many state and New York City journals failed to take note, for example, of one point of view expressed at a recent gathering of Republicans. The subject under discussion was party leadership, past, present and future. The speaker was a member of the New York State Assembly, Albert Haskell, Jr., of Cortland.

Assemblyman Haskell was speaking upon a resolution he had introduced, which reads as follows:

"We, the Republican members of the Assembly, highly commend the action of the State Chairman and approve his recommendations regarding new leadership." The speaker had in mind Melvin C. Eaton. "Our Chairman", said Assemblyman Haskell, "has blazed a new trail for the Republican party in New York State. He has gone directly to the people for their counsel and advice and the only question here today is whether we are willing to follow the mandate of the people and the leadership of our state chairman.

Mr. Haskell drove hime his point, in detail, when he declared: The time has come when the people will not stand for four or five men sitting down selfishly in a room by themselves and dictating their own wishes and running the party in their own interest. The time has come when the elected representatives of the people must consider the wishes of the man on the street, on the farm, and the small business man." Owing to an agreement that no vote should be taken on any matter at this meeting, the resolution of Mr. Haskell was not acted upon but great enthusiasm marked the new, announced policy of the Chairman of the Republican State Committee.

"We need no Messiah from the West to point the way", declared Mr. Haskell, amid the applause.

* * *

Among those named on the Lincoln Day Committee of the National Republican Club in New York City, is Honorary Chairman Colonel A. B. Humphrey. Of Colonel Humphrey, Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, President of the club, has this to say:

"It is most fitting that Colonel Humphrey should be named Honorary Chairman. He served under Lincoln in the Ohio Volunteer Infantry. He was on duty the night Lincoln was shot, and he founded the Lincoln Dinner of the National Republican Club in 1887."

The principal speakers at the Lincoln Day Dinner of the Club, February 12, 1935, will be President Glenn Frank, of the University of Wisconsin, and Harold G. Hoffman, Governor-elect of New Jersey.

* * *

No response has yet been made by Senator William E. Borah to the request of Henry P. Fletcher, Chairman of the Republican Committee, that the Senator produce 16 National Committeemen from as many states who wish to call a special meeting of the National Committee to consider the so-called "liberal" program of the Senator.

* * *

John E. Mack, attorney for the Legislative Committee investigating the New York State public utilities, had something to say the other day regarding the evidence produced so far by his Legislative Committee. Mr. Mack remarked:

"May I say that so far as our investigation is concerned, we have as yet found no memorandum or anything indicating corruption on the part of any legislator, and I except the letters of former State Senator Warren T. Thayer, which were gotten out by the Federal Trade Commission, and which speak for themselves."

* * *

To questioners, Governor Lehman replies, "It would be a real busy session of the Legislature". The legislative leaders are loud in proclaiming their expectations of an adjournment by March 15. Most observers expect the session to continue well in the spring. With but seventy-seven Democrats in the Assembly, the absence of two of their members at any one time will prevent that party obtaining a constitutional majority and will prevent the passage of any controversial measures. The protracted illness of two Democratic members would hold up all the party's projects indefinitely, and with such highly controversial measures as redistricting and action on the proposed changes in county government to be presented by the Mastick Commission some time during February, it will be only the rarest good fortune which will enable an adjournment even as early as that of last year. The ribald are saying that "two stomaches a day will keep the Democrats away."

* * *

While it is conceded that the problem of redistricting the State will be one of the worst snarls which the Democrats will have to unravel, there is another proposition upon which it is apparent that they are riding directly to a fall, and that is the proposition for the state to assume control not alone of the state highways but the county and town roads as well—a proposition which is meeting with storms of disapproval all over the state.

Boards of Supervisors of various counties have already gone on record in objection to this scheme, which is part of the general plan to remove from the localities their rights over their own affairs. It is not believed that Democrats from the up-state counties will consent to the Farleyizing of township roads, the importance of which in most cases can only be determined by local needs and are not properly to be intrusted to the management of Colonel Greene, who, while indisputably a competent engineer, has very little knowledge of what is best for rural communities.

So far as action has been taken in regard to this road control by the state, in every single instance the vote in opposition has been unanimous, Democratic as well as Republican Supervisors in the several counties which have acted being alike utterly opposed to the suggestion.

* * *

Governor Lehman is receiving letters at the rate of about one hundred a day protesting against the proposed abolition of the Council of Agriculture and Markets, it is reliably reported in Albany. For many years Democratic Governors have sought to bring the Department of Agriculture and Markets directly under their supervision by abolishing the Council and placing a single commissioner, appointed by the Governor, at the head of this department. The Democrats have never been able to accomplish this because they have not before in a great many years had control of the Assembly. The department, if thrown back into politics, would be a rich source of patronage, and Democratic leaders in all sections of the state, but especially in New York City, are casting longing eyes in the direction of the Department of Agriculture which is now headed by Commissioner Charles H. Baldwin.

Governor Lehman finds himself under great pressure from two diametrically opposed forces. On the one hand the Tammany leaders, Farley and Dailey, etc. are insisting that he carry out the party pledge to do away with the Council and to appoint deserving Democrats in the place of the scientifically trained men who are now running the department. On the other hand upstate farmers in great numbers are insisting that the Council remain and that this department be kept out of partisan politics. Governor Lehman's annual message will be read with great interest on this point.

Survey Shows "Scholarship Students" Excel Fellow Graduates In Achievements of Life

Ithaca, N. Y., Dec. 10 — The first comprehensive study of the value of the 750 cash scholarships awarded annually since 1913 to students enrolled in the approved colleges of New York State has just been completed at Cornell University. Among the 43 institutions at which those scholars pursued their courses, Cornell received the largest number every year, with the exception of the first year, 1913, when Columbia was in first place. That those who have held these scholarships at Cornell are more successful as students in college activities and in their lives after graduation than the general average of Cornellians is the conclusion of John K. Archer '27, who has just completed a study of their achievements, both while they were in the University and since.

The scholarships were established through the successful efforts of Dr. Andrew S. Draper, the late president of the University of the State of New York. The Commissioner of Education at Albany each year awards five State University Scholarships for each Assembly district of the state. They entitle the holder to $100 for each year he attends an approved college in the state, for a period of four years. Holders of these scholarships are not restricted in choice of college except that it must be one authorized to confer degrees and within the state; nor in course of study except that they do not include professional instruction in theology or in any graduate courses following the receiving of a bachelor's degree.

Archer is principal of Malverne High School at Malverne, N. Y. He received his Master of Arts degree in September. Under the direction of Dr. Frank S. Freeman he investigated the achievement in schools, in the University, and as alumni of the nearly four hundred graduates who held state cash scholarships from 1913, when they were first established, to 1927. The study was confined to those who held scholarships in the first eleven years to give a reasonable lapse of time after graduation before inquiring of these alumni as to their accomplishments.

During the period studied more than a third of all those who won these scholarships chose to come to Ithaca. Next to Cornell, the largest numbers went to Columbia, Hunter, Syracuse, College of the City of New York, State College for teachers, New York University, Rochester, Vassar, Elmira, St. Bonaventure and Union, in the order named.

In Regents' examinations, mental test scores, and in their college grades, these scholars in the University proved consistently superior to comparable groups of average students. Nineteen per cent of them were elected to Phi Beta Kappa. They remained in the University longer than did other groups used for comparison; 83.33% of them received Cornell degrees.

Contrary to the popular conception that a "scholar" is unsocial, uninterested in student activities, devoted to scholastic pursuits to the exclusion of all others, the average of this group proved himself to be quite the contrary. Seventy-three per cent of them were members of honorary fraternities, social fraternities, or honorary societies. Sixty per cent took part in at least one student activity.

These social activities are the more remarkable in view of the fact that 68 per cent of the group were practically or entirely self-supporting in college. The average scholar was able to be a member of a fraternity, to participate in extracurricular activities and to partially support himself, all at the same time.

The achievements of these scholars as alumni, Archer found, show the same consistent superiority. More are engaged in teaching than in any other professions. The other vocations in which they are engaged, in order according to the number of each, are engineers, business executives, statisticians, lawyers, physicians, scientists, accountants, social welfare workers, librarians, salesmen. Forty per cent of the group have received advanced degrees.

The average maximum salary received is slightly less than $3,000 a year, A few however, receive from $9,000 to more than $20,000. Comparatively few have felt the effects of the economic situation and reductions of salary, and but very few reported losses of their positions as a result of the depression.

New Bulletin Lists Books For Children Too Young For School

This paper has received a copy of a new Cornell bulletin which gives a list of books for children who are too young to go to school, It is called "Growing Up With Books."

The bulletin asks: "What should a book do for a child? Simply it should help him to live. If it confuses him, laughs at him, interprets life in a less true way than he has know, it does fail. If it truly meets the needs of his age and experience, the book will help the child to live.

"Every child should have books of his own. He is entitled to his own books for the same reason that he is entitled to his own clothing, his own bed, his own food. The clothes and beds of other members of the family do not fit him. Their food does not agree with him. He must have special equipment and nourishment of the right kind while he is a baby to make his body grow strong and vigorous and independent. Books of his own, like a bed of his own, help him to the process".

The bulletin has only sixteen pages. It describes books in which the interest in pictures is foremost, books which feature rhyme and story as a supplement to pictures, and books in which the story-interest is foremost.

This paper has been informed that the bulletin will be sent free of charge to residents of New York state. A penny post card to the office of publication, Roberts Hall, Ithaca, N. Y., brings a copy. Send requests to that office, and ask for bulletin E-299.

Upstate Visitors Sensation On Fashionable Park Avenue

Guests of honor at one of New York's most brilliant social functions, the two pedigreed calves from upstate New York, pictured above, provided a real touch that amazed a city unaccustomed to witnessing livestock parading its most highbrow avenue. Escorted by the two Social Registerites, seen holding them, the upstate visitors were promenaded along fashionable Park Avenue before being led into the Park Lane Hotel where they were the sensation of the Milky Way Ball held there for the benefit of the Social Service Auxiliary of the Cancer Institute. During the course of the festivities they were auctioned off, the proceeds going to the institute.

Contributed by Paul Smith from his Maple Grove Farms in Newark Valley, N. Y., and Wilfred W. Fry, President of the N. W. Ayres & Son, Inc., from his Meridale Farm in Delaware County, the calves also played a part in calling attention to New York State's "Drink More Milk" campaign. In this they were aided by two registered cows from the New York State Institute of Applied Agriculture at Farmingdale, Long Island.

The auctioning of the calves, however, was just one of many stunts that turned Park Avenue into a country lane for one night. Guests attending the ball were brought there in a large hay wagon and a number of milk wagons. A milking contest was staged in which debutantes, stage and screen stars participated. Hay-pitching, corn-husking and horseshoe pitching were practiced by the social registerites, while a program of entertainment, more or less rural in character, was given under the direction of Major Edward Bowes, of Capitol Theatre Family fame.

With Governor Lehman, Mayor LaGuardia and Mrs. James Roosevelt among the patrons and patronesses of the Milky Way Ball, the function attracted, among others, Mr. and Mrs. Gene Tunney, Elsie Janis, Princess Obolensky, Walter Huston, Countess Colloredo-Mannsfeld, McClelland Barclay and Jonas Lie.

Forget "Bushel" In Potato Sales

The sixty-pound bushel of potatoes "passed out" as a legal bushel nearly five years ago but the continued use of the "old" measure has cost New York State farmers thousands of dollars, according to Webster J. Birdsall, Director of the Bureau of Markets of the New York State Department of Agriculture and Markets.

The present legal bushel of potatoes is a standard bushel basket, as defined under the United States Container Act of 1929, filled levelfull of potatoes. This bushel may vary in weight. Ten of these legal bushels, slightly heaped, and offered for sale on a public market were recently purchased and weighed. The average weight was approximately 54 pounds to the bushel.

Market quotations are given for 60 pound sacks, 100 pound sacks, 150 pound sacks, or 180 pounds bulk and farm sales should be made on the basis of these quotations. Buyers who demand 60-pound bushels when buying from growers sell by bushels and not by weight. Their gain may be as much as five to eight pounds on each bushel; a comfortable margin, he points out.

When a 60-pound bushel is specified in a contract, that contract must be fulfilled. But in other sales Director Birdsall advises selling by weight and according to the quotations given daily in radio market reports and in the newspapers.

Grandson of E. E. Sollinger Killed Last Week in Coasting Accident

Five-year-old Boy Dies Instantly When Sled Collides With Heavy Truck — Funeral One of Largest Ever Held in Community — Grandparents, Addison Residents for Past Year, Attend.

John Sollinger, five-year-old grandson of Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Sollinger of Addison, was instantly killed last week near his home at Emlenton, Pa., when his sled on which he was coasting crashed off the sidewalk at the bottom of a hill and collided with a heavily loaded truck. The lad was very popular among the townspeople and his funeral, held three days later, was one of the most largely attended ever held in the community.

"John Sollinger, five-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. R. Cordon Sollinger, was instantly killed about 2:10 P. M. today while coasting, when his sled carried him under a heavily loaded truck of pipe at the intersection of Main and Fourth street in Emlenton.

"The truck, owned and driven by Rudolph Katuza, accompanied by Joseph Smerdel, both of Rixford, Pa., was hauling pipe from Frogtown, on the Kittanning road, a few miles south of Karns City, to Kane, Pa. The boy on the sled came down the sidewalk on the west side of Fourth street, crossed the sidewalk and crashed into Main street. The driver of the truck saw him and swerved as far to the right as possible in an effort to avoid the accident. The sled, however, carried the boy under the truck and apparently the left rear wheel passed over the child. The boy, witnesses say, was sitting up on the sled. The truck was brought to a stop as soon as the driver realized what had happened. M. R. Lynn, who saw the accident occur, and Jack Crawford picked up the child and rushed him to the office of Dr. C. S. Bridenboaugh, where he was pronounced dead. The State Highway Motor Patrol and the coroner were notified, but up to the time of going to press they had not arrived.

"John Sollinger was about five years of age and was the son of R. Cordon Sollinger and Mrs. Hazel Brock Sollinger, who survive, with one sister, Martha."

Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Sollinger, grandparents of the unfortunate youngster, purchased the farm of D. H. Orr at the edge of the village on the Corning road about a year ago and have since resided in Addison. They were in attendance at the funeral.

HIGHWAY HIGHLIGHTS

How's Your Knowledge of Cars, Roads and Travel?

Q. What common driving experience forcibly indicates the need for more and wider roads and streets? A. Congestion at periods of peak loads, during the morning and evening rush hours and on Sundays and holidays. Also more accidents occur at these times.

Q. What country has the fewest miles of road for its size? A. French Guiana has only 28 miles of highway or one mile for each 1240 square miles of area. The U. S. has about 1 mile of road for every square mile of area.

Q. Why is the term "gasoline tax" a misnomer? A. Because it originated as a method of proportioning a toll for road use based on the amount of travel. As it was intended to build and maintain roadbeds for automobiles it is more of a toll than a tax.

Q. Are solid tires still used on trucks? A. Yes. Ten years ago 25 per cent of trucks had solid tires. Now, less than 2 per cent are so equipped.

Q. Does the law require a motorist who is not at fault to report an accident which involves him? A. Yes, most states require a report from any motorist involved in an accident if there is death, personal injury or property damage.

Q. What percentage of automobiles now produced in the U. S. are of the closed type? A. About 98 per cent. Five years ago, 88 per cent and ten years ago, only 34 per cent.

Examination To Be Held For Postmaster Candidates in Addison

A recent announcement from Washington states that applications of those desiring to take the civil service examination for the position of postmaster at Addison must be received by Friday, January 4. The announcement reads as follows.

"At the request of the postmaster general, the U. S. Civil Service commissioner has announced an open competitive examination to fill the position of postmaster at Addison office at which a vacancy exists. It is expected that appointments will be made as a result of this examination unless it is found in the interest of the service to fill any vacancy by transfer or promotion. This is not an examination under the Civil Service Act of Rules, but is held under an executive order of July 12, 1933, providing for such procedure.

"The date for assembling of competitors will be stated on the admission cards sent applicants after the date for the close of receipt of applications and will be about fifteen days after that date.

It is stated that applicants must be between 21 and 66 years of age, these limitations being waived, however, in the case of world war, Spanish-American war and Philippine insurrection veterans. Applicants must have actually resided within the delivery of the vacancy office for one year immediately preceding the closing date of application. Application blanks may be obtained from the vacancy office or from the U. S. Civil Service Commission, Washington, D. C.

Further information lists as being ineligible the husband or wife of a rural mail carrier or any person connected in a contract for carrying the mails, either as contractor, sub contractor, surety, or any immediate member of the family.

Lighting Effects Enhance Christmas Program At Baptist Sunday School

The annual Christmas exercises of the Sunday School were held at the First Baptist Church Saturday evening before a large audience.

The program began with a piano duet by Mrs. Henry Sherwood and Mrs. Ivan Tompkins followed by a short scripture reading, Luke's account of the birth of Jesus, by the Rev. K. E. Arnold. The invocation was given by the Rev. Mr. Arnold's father, the Rev. George N. Arnold of Gibson. A program of twenty-five to thiry minutes duration was given by the members of the primary and intermediate departments consisting of speaking, music and singing.

Following the children's program a Christmas pageant, "The Angels' Message to the World" was presented. The main feature of this part of the program was the stage scenery and lighting effects The scenery consisted of a large picture, nine feet by twenty-four feet, depicting the shepherds gathered around their campfire watching their flocks on the hills of Judea. The beauty of this picture was brought out by the lighting effects, which consisted of a red lamp illuminating the shepherds' campfire and a lavender flood lamp focused on the entire picture. At the time the angels appeared to the shepherds a strong white light was turned on behind the scenery and the angels appeared in the smoke of the shepherds' campfire. A large star of blue lights also appeared over Bethlehem with the appearance of the angels.

Those taking part in the pageant were: Elwin Miller, reader; shepherds, Maude Butler, Elmer Aumick; elderly man, Carl Aumick; travelers on way to Bethlehem, children of primary and intermediate departments. Music was supplied by a choir composed of Miss Ruth Dense, Mrs. Beverly J. Stauffer and Miss Bernice Aumick, sopranos; Miss Leanore Runyan and Miss Beulah Arnold of Gibson, contraltos; organist, Mrs. Henry Sherwood. Christmas carols sung in connection with the pageant were: "It Came Upon a Midnight Clear", "O, Little Town of Bethlehem" "While Shepherds Watched Their Flocks", "Silent Night; Holy Night", "Joy to the World".

Agriculture Must Organize, Solidly, Soon, Grangers Are Told

President of Organization Says Grange is Needed in Preventing Legislation Unsatisfactory to Farmers and in Securing Helpful Laws — Other Speakers at Four-Day Session.

The 62nd annual session of the New York State Grange held in Niagara Falls December 11, 12, 13, 14 closed Friday evening after completing a very successful program.

Monday afternoon and evening Grangers arrived by the hundreds at the Grange headquarters in the Hotel Niagara from all parts of the state. At one session the assembly was estimated at 3000, these being only members of the State Grange.

A get-to-gether meeting was held in the ball room of the Hotel Niagara Monday evening and also a banquet given in the dining hall for officers, deputies and delegates-at-large.

The program began at 9:30 Tuesday morning in the Armory where all regular sessions were held. This morning was given over largely to the address of State Master Fred J. Freestone.

Following are a few quotations from Mr. Freestone's address: "Patrons, we have just opened the doors of the 62nd session of the New York State Grange, representing a farm organization largest in membership and strongest in influence to be found in any state in the nation".

"There are delegates here representing nearly every walk of life, but for the major part you represent our New York State farm homes; it is well to bring different interests together."

"If agriculture is to endure, it must be organized solidly and soon".

"For many years the Grange has been opposed to the dishonest dollar, that is, a dollar which varies in value and buys different amounts of the same commodity at different times. What would you think of a yard-stick which varied its number of inches?"

"President Roosevelt and his associates are to be highly commended for recognizing the fact that the price of gold must be advanced before there can be any economic recovery. Every country in the world that went off the gold standard and raised the price of its gold succeeded in raising prices of its basic commodities and started the return of good times".

"Japan leads the world in industrial expansion. Her gold is worth $55 an ounce. Gold is at $50 an ounce in Brazil, and that country is having an industrial boom. Of course, the whole goal is not reached simply by raising the price of gold. We must get it up far enough to establish fair prices, on all commodities, and then hold it there, perhaps by using the commodity dollar, so that it does not vary much either way. If we can establish thus an honest dollar which always buys the same amount of goods, we can pretty nearly solve the problem of inflation and deflation, thereby conquering forever these ruinous depressions.

"Nowhere is your Grange more needed and more effective than in preventing legislation unsatisfactory to farmers and in securing helpful laws. Individual farmers are not watchful enough of their interests at Albany and Washington. Members of the legislature often tell me that farmers are not expressive. They do not take time to write or telegraph even on important proposals of grave moment to them. Were it not then for farm organizations like the Grange, farmers would suffer, especially in this state where city population is so much larger."

"The Grange supported the campaign to increase the consumption of milk, because it is our theory that prices for milk will improve only when consumption can be increased."

"Just as it is a true principle that neither nation nor individual can spend their way out of the depression, so it is equally true that they cannot drink their way out of it. The Grange is proud of its history of work for temperance. We stood for prohibition. We must continue to stand as a rock in this matter of temperance. We country people can and must stop it in our own rural communities."

"Right education has already been a fundamental principle of farm people and of the Grange. There is need of emphasis on right education and true learning and true wisdom. Not all learning and wisdom can be had within the walls of a school room. There is also that great teacher of experience — The School of Hard Knocks."

"Last year at Lake Placid, New York held third place in Honor Granges in the nation, this year we are first. Our challenge is to hold this distinction."

Reports of State Grange Secretary, H. M. Stanley, State Grange Treasurer, John W. Kleis and Chairman of the Executive Committee, E. J. Walrath were given at this session.

During the afternoon an address was given by James C. Farmer, National Lecturer. His subject was "A Good Patron Should Know Our History". "Live in the present, foresee our future and be ready for the next step.

U. P. Heidrick, director of the Geneva Experiment Station, gave a report on what was needed instead of what has been done.

Tuesday evening the following program was presented: selection, Derrington's Orchestra; address of welcome, by a member of the Chamber of Commerce; response, Fred J. Freestone, Master N. Y. State Grange; solo, Mrs. Howard Disinger of Lockport; reading, Miss Louise Roselyn Fox of Barker; selections, Derrington's Orchestra; play, "Seeing Things Right", members of Lockport Grange.

Reception.

Reports occupied a part of the Wednesday morning session.

Dr. Erl A. Bates, advisor in Indian extension, spoke on the subject, "The Value of the Grange to Rural Life", and an address was given by A. S. Goss, Federal Land Bank Commissioner, Washington, D. C., former master of the Washington State Grange.

Resolutions without debate were again called for and also the election of a member of the executive committee which resulted in George H. Ritter succeeding himself..

Mrs. Ware of Genesee County was escorted to the master's station, introduced as mother of the Grange and honored by the assembly. Mrs. Ware has attended every session of the State Grange since 1895 except three.

During the session of Wednesday afternoon, H. E. Babcock, Grange Trustee of Cornell University, gave his report. Several others were also read.

A telegram was received from President Franklin D. Roosevelt expressing his good wishes to the Grange.

Degrees were conferred on Juvenile members and the awarding of pennants to Juvenile Granges took place at this time.

Andover Juvenile Grange which is second best in the nation, Senate Juvenile Grange and Dansville Juvenile Grange were awarded silk flags for being the three "Top-Notchers".

In the evening a memorial service was held, this was followed by a prize-speaking contest. Those taking part were students representing the six New York State Schools of Agriculture and was sponsored by the New York Grange. The contestants and subjects were: "The Farmer and his Government", Edward Baker, Farmingdale, L. I.; "The Farmer and the Grange", Joseph Brent, Delhi; "Relieving Real Estate of Its Tax Burden", Lloyd Burdick, Alfred; "The Value of an Agricultural Education", Willis Jones, Morrisville; "Training for Leadership in Agriculture", Ernest Riegel, Cobleskill; "What Dairymen Can Do About Low Prices" Carl Wight, Canton.

First prize was awarded Carl Wight; second, Edward Baker; third, Willis Jones. The judges were the Rev. Fred Dean, chaplain of N. Y. State Grange, H. E. Babcock, Cornell University and W. J. Small, deputy superintendent of schools of Niagara Falls.

The winning play in the "Milk Publicity Contest" was presented at the Tuesday morning session.

L. L. Allen, who has been State Historian for 55 years, gave his report, also that of H. M. Stanley of the Revolving Scholarship Fund. This fund has proven of great assistance to girls and boys who wish a higher education and otherwise would have been unable to receive it.

Sherman Lowell, the only living past master of New York Grange, was greeted by the assembly. He gave to the Grange many helpful and interesting thoughts.

Carl E. Ladd, Dean of Agricultural College, Cornell, spoke of the advantages of the boy reared on the farm over that of the city boy and how much easier it is to place them in agricultural positions after their completion of college. He also stated that the health of the rural population was falling below normal.

Presentation of awards to Granges having made a net gain of 25 or more members and awards to Champion Granges were made at this time.

An interesting address was made by E. R. Eastman, editor of the American Agriculturist. He declared that one of the greatest achievements of the Grange is that women are declared to be as fit for important positions as men. He also advocated the building of better homes.

Mrs. McCullen, chairman of the cake baking contest, reports that 51 counties, 375 Pomona Granges and at least 2,500 women responded to the contest.

Thursday at 1 o'clock the Cyanamid Plant gave a luncheon to members of the Grange at their plant in Niagara Falls, Canada. Busses were in waiting at the Armory to carry the Grangers across the line. There was no session in the afternoon so places of interest were visited.

Conferring the sixth degree on a class of 353 candidates took place Thursday evening. Andrew Cornell, a member of Woodhull Grange, received the degree at this time.

Following the degree work an address was given by National Master L. J. Taber. Mr. Taber is quoted as saying, "No other organization in the world is equal to this delegate body of the New York State Grange".

His main topic was "Farmers". He stated that a man who owns a New York farm will be better off in five years than the man who owns bank bonds or stocks, also that earnest men and women are ready to fight for their rights. He urged the need of organization, education and cooperation, saying that the farmer will solve his own problems by use of the O. E. C.

Mr. Taber emphasized, as did State Master Freestone, the necessity of seeking an honest dollar and the revaluation of gold and the need of maintaining a commodity surplus.

He also spoke on reducing the cost of farm operation, tax burdens and the sale of farm homes because of taxes.

Mr. Taber encouraged his audience by saying he knew conditions were better and that they were going to continue to improve.

In closing Master Taber asked that we all preserve the morale, economic, patriotic and religious standards of the past that they be sustained into the future.

At the close of the evening session the sixth degree drill was beautifully given and refreshments served.

Invitations from ten cities for the State Grange to be held in their city were read and from Utica a member of the Chamber of Commerce gave a personal invitation.

Friday was given over mostly to the resolutions. One resolution was read from Steuben County regarding child labor. Many of these were of vital importance to the farmer.

The closing session was held in the Hotel Niagara Friday evening. G. H. Ritter was installed as a member of the executive committee.

Unfinished business was taken care of and committee reports concluded. The estimated cost of the Grange sessions for four days totaled $11,000.

Deer Helpful In Controlling Under Growth

In a study of deer browsing, John Pearce of the New York State College of Forestry, Syracuse, N. Y., a graduate forester, found that hardwood species constitute a large part of the winter feed of the deer. This may be something of a surprise to those who have noticed evidence of browsing on balsam, cedar, white pine and hemlock.

"But close observation of the undergrowth in the forest," says Mr. Pearce, "shows that hardwood species, especially red maple with some birch and sugar maple make up a very large percentage of the deer's winter forage.

"In addition to this, other less common species, such as mountain ash, black ash, and many shrubs including witch hobble, honeysuckle, wild raisin and swamp holly furnish winter food for the deer. This young growth is browsed most heavily on slipes and knolls adjacent to the swamps where deer find shelter. It is especially noteworthy that red spruce is seldom eaten in any season of the year and that among the hardwoods beech is seldom browsed. It is not safe, however, to assert that the deer never browse these species. This question has been debated by sportsmen and others familiar with the habits of deer for a long time. It is true, however, that if deer browse red spruce and beech it is because other foods are very scarce."

Mr. Pearce found areas where the browsing of other second growth was so complete as to permit a practically pure growth of red spruce to occupy the ground. There is no doubt that in favorable locations the deer become the controlling factor in regeneration of the forest following cutting operations, since they are able to hold in check vigorous growth of species such as red maple, balsam, hemlock, white pine and cedar.

Farm Bureau Closes Successful Year At Annual Convention

The Annual meeting of the Home Department of the Steuben County Farm and Home Bureau Association was held in the Supervisors rooms Saturday morning preceding the dinner and afternoon program of the joint associations and of the Dairymen's League. The meeting was presided over by Mrs. H. D. Wood of Corning, County Chairman, with Mrs. R. P. Thatcher of Canisteo acting as secretary.

Mrs. Aaron Putnam of Wheeler, County Vive-Chairman gave the county membership report to date and asked all local Vice-Chairmen to complete their membership work as rapidly as possible.

Mrs. Lois Mathewson, County Agent, briefly reviewed the work of the Bureau for the year. This report brought out some interesting figures. Total meetings held by the Agent, by specialists, and by local leaders in Home Bureau units were 493 with an attendance of 5,298 women, 861 instructive bulletins were distributed throughout the past ten months and in addition, a great many of the 535 circular letters contained subject matter requested by members and non-members. Individual letters written in furthering Home Bureau work were 772. Home visits made by the Agent number 300.

Mrs. Mathewson said in Summarizing her report, "It is almost impossible to estimate the value of our work in dollars and cents. This is true of all types of education where complete results are not always known and the extent to which the influence has been spread is difficult to learn. Women are busy folks and but few have extra time in which to earn money but if they want to do that, the Home Bureau can help them. Our main problem, however, is to help women to use to better advantage the things they have and to spend to the best advantage the money that they have to spend. In this day and age everyone recognizes the need for maintaining good standards of living and for making and keeping our homes pleasant for all the members of the family. Homes are important to the nation."

Mrs. Ray Scribner of Greenwood gave the report of the Nominating Committee which was accepted re-electing all three of the Executive Committee members whose terms expire. Mrs. Fenton of Savona will continue to serve on the Committee for another year. Mrs. R. P. Thatcher of Canisteo and Mrs. F. W. Ives of Avoca will both serve three year terms.

Reports of the recent Annual meeting of the State Federation of Home Bureaus were given by the women who attended; Mrs. Wood, Mrs. Fenton, Mrs. Ives, Mrs. Putnam, and Mrs. Mathewson.

The Home Department Meeting adjourned at noon to convene for dinner and the afternoon session jointly with the Farm Bureau and Dairymen's League.

Milk No Longer Regarded As A Luxury

Failure of Consumers to Appreciate Value of Milk as a Food Also a Deterrent to Consumption—People Being Educated Through Advertising to the Good Which Milk Does and to Proper Methods of Use.

Two major factors combined to force down milk consumption when the depression lowered purchasing power.

One was the well established belief that milk is an expensive food—a luxury. The other was the failure of consumers to appreciate milk's intrinsic value as the foremost health food.

The State of New York is attempting to restore milk to its proper major position in the family diet as "a bargain food."

Because it contains more of the elements that the body needs than does any other one food.

Because the body's need for calcium cannot be supplied in any ordinary diet without it.

Because it provides a large share of the day's needs for phosphorus and protein and important amounts of the vitamins.

Because it can be used in countless ways, and in cooking without losing its value.

Because of the contribution it makes to your family's health.

What Milk Does

It helps to make children grow rapidly.

It helps to build strong flesh to children and to keep the flesh of adults strong and firm.

It provides vitamins which promote growth, increase vigor and resistance to disease.

It carries vigor on into old age and extends life.

How To Us Milk

Drink milk eggnogs, cocoa, milk shakes.

Eat milk: bread and milk, crackers and milk, cereal and milk, cheese, ice cream.

Chowders: such as corn, fish, vegetable.

Escalloped dishes: such as eggs, macaroni, vegetables.

Sauces: such as white sauce, cheese sauce, milk gravy.

Pies: such as chocolate cream, custard, pumpkin.

Breads, cakes and cookies.

Sour Milk or Buttermilk: Cakes, brown bread, gingerbread, biscuits and puddings.

Sometimes a supply of milk and cream accumulates and starts to sour. So, many homemakers watch for ways to use sour milk or cream.

Use Potatoes For Economy Says Commissioner Baldwin

New York State Will Be Second Largest Potato-Producing State In The Country This Year

By CHARLES H. BALDWIN
Commissioner, Department of Agriculture and Markets
Albany, New York

NEW YORK STATE will be the second largest producer of potatoes in the nation this year with 24,720,000 bushels. Last year the production was 24,600,000 bushels or 120,000 bushels less than this year's estimated crop.

New York is admirably fitted to produce large and wholesome potatoes. Long Island ships more potatoes than any other section in the State, one third of the Island's product being Irish Cobblers and the balance Green Mountains. In Western New York the chief types produced are Rural New Yorkers, Number 9, Heavyweight, Rural Russets and Carmans.

New York Potatoes

The name and fame of New York State, Long Island, Green Mountains and Cobblers is known and recognized by every potato expert and dealer in the country.

These names refer to smooth, clean-skinned bright potatoes of uniform size, high quality and large reputation as a baking as well as a cooking potato.

In these days of economy, householders can best reduce their cost of living and obtain all the necessary food elements by laying in potatoes and other vegetables for the entire winter and spring and by spending a fair portion of the food dollar for milk.

To obtain the highest food value potatoes should not be peeled before cooking. In two tests peeled potatoes were soaked before boiling. The total loss ranged from 6.5 per cent in the case of the peeled potatoes soaked before boiling to less than one per cent in the case of potatoes boiled with the skins on.

A New York State Potato Field

Baked Potatoes

When baked in their skins potatoes probably undergo much the same changes as in boiling, but the potato loses practically none of its ingredients except a little water which evaporates through the skin. The potato has a food value of 385 calories to the pound, that is, when burned in the body, as all foods must be when utilized) it yields energy equal to the amount named.

Potatoes are easy to cook and can be prepared in so many ways that they add variety to the list of vegetable dishes, especially in winter, when green vegetables are not common.

If you wish a pamphlet on potatoes, write to the Consumers' Information Service, Department of Agriculture and Markets, Albany, N. Y.

Addison Knights Turn Back Horseheads Five, Winning 25-20

The Addison High School Knights added another win to their lengthening column Friday when they took the Horseheads five on the local gym floor. But it was not until the final three minutes of play that the Addison boys pulled out of their slump to turn a see-saw game into a clear-cut 25 to 20 victory. Coach Hewson's five had little trouble going through the Horseheads defense, but the shooting was poor and their defense was as full of holes as a sieve.

The game was close enough to be interesting all the way through, it being tied a total of six times. Horseheads came from behind to tie four times in the first half and in the last half the Addison boys came from behind to tie twice, besides the final rally when they overcame the visitors' lead to forge ahead to win. The home team threw away many chances to put the game on ice, by staging a dismal exhibition of foul shooting, netting three points out of twelve tries from the free throw line. The Horseheads boys, on the contrary converted four throws out of five attempts from the foul line. Robbins led the scoring with six field baskets and two points from the foul line for a total of 14.

Addison's attack started to function after about three minutes of pass work, Gillespie cutting into position to drop a cripple through the hoop. Wilson followed with a nice shot from the side on a well executed play. Hickey missed a foul and Horseheads dropped in a couple of double deckers to make it 4-all at the quarter. Robbins was fouled at the beginning of the period as he attempted to shoot, and converted both throws. Horseheads sneaked through the Addison defense for a cripple. Gillespie fooled the opposition defense as he went in close for another two-point shot. Hickey tossed another from in front the basket. Robbins missed a free shot. He then fouled the Horseheads center under the basket and the latter tossed the ball through twice. The visitors again tied at 10 to 10. Hickey made hisi second basket, but the visitors came right back with another to make it 12 all at the half. Robbins was getting the tap most of the time in center against a taller opponent.

Horseheads began to carry the game to Addison in the third period, forging ahead with two conversions on foul shots. But Robbins began to find his eye and dropped one in on a backwards shot. After Robbins missed another free throw Horseheads forged ahead with another basket, but Robbie tossed in another bucket to tie it again at 16 to 16. Horseheads made another. Flynn converted a foul and Robbins made another cripple. Horseheads took the lead once more 20 to 19 as the period ended.

Wilson missed a free shot at the beginning of the last quarter and the ball changed hands several times with neither side scoring as some four minutes dragged along. Robbins then made one of his famous shots under the basket to put the locals one point ahead. With less than two minutes to play Flynn received the ball on an out-of-bounds play three quarters of the length of the court, rifled a long pass to Robbins under the basket who tossed another. This took the heart out of the visitors and the Knights had no trouble jockeying the ball into position where Robbins tossed another to net himself 14 points and put the game on ice.

Finnerty's Future Farmers Trounce Quint From Up the Valley—Heidrick, Beers, Hallett Score From All Angles—W. Crane Garners 8 Points for Visitors.

The Addison High School Aggies chalked up their first win Wednesday night when they beat the Cameron Town Team, 47 to 16. The Aggies started piling up a lead from the first toss up. Beers with 12 and Hallett with 10 were the F. F. A. basketeers biggest helpers. Heidrick made 9 points in the first half but left the game shortly after the halfway whistle. W. Crane accounted for 8 of Cameron's 16 points.

Use Silver To Check Tarnish

Idleness is Menace—Eggs, Rubber, Cloth, Paper Also Guilty.

This newspaper has received a copy of a new Cornell bulletin on house cleaning.

On the cleaning and care of silver, the bulletin says: "The easiest way to keep silver clean is to use it. It becomes tarnished when allowed to lie around. Sulfur causes silver to tarnish. Sulfur is found in eggs, in rubber, in many kinds of cloth, especially white, and in most paper.

"Coal gas or escaping natural gas affect silver over a period of time. Heat and moisture also increase tarnish."

The bulletin is written in the form of letters. One homemaker writes to another to tell her how to shampoo and clean rugs, to clean wallpaper, painted walls and woodwork, to clean natural wood finish, silver, brass, copper and pewter. She also tells her friend how to wash chairs and to polish porcelain. The cover page of the bulletin shows a homemaker cleaning an upholstered chair.

This paper has been informed that the bulletin will be sent free of charge to residents of New York State. A penny postcard to the office of publication, Roberts Hall, Cornell University, Ithaca, N. Y., brings a copy. Send requests to that office, and ask for bulletin E-262.

CHARLES BRINK

The death of Charles Brink occurred at his home on Mt. Pleasant Thursday, December 20, about one o'clock in the afternoon following an illness of three months.

Mr. Brink was born in the town of Thurston, March 24, 1876 the son of Rhoda and Samuel Brink. He moved to this vicinity about twenty years ago, where he has since resided.

Fourteen years ago he was united in marriage to Mrs. Sarah Calkins of Goodhue Hill.

Surviving are his wife, one brother, David of Thurston, and stepgrandson, Ernest Jones who has made his home with his grandparents the past several years.

He will be greatly missed by his many friends as he was always of a friendly disposition, a kind and accommodating neighbor.

The funeral was held from the home Sunday afternoon at two o'clock, the Rev. J. V. Axtell officiated. Bearers were Ithemore Hadlock, Enos Hadlock, Garfield Space, N. R. Partridge, Guy Crane and Ben Hibbard. Burial was made in Addison Rural Cemetery.

Plan For Future With Home Wiring

Prevent Costly Mistakes Later, Cornell Professors Declare

Wiring systems should be planned not only to meet present needs but to meet future needs as well, say Professors F. B. Wright and B. B. Robb of the New York state college of agriculture.

A little planning, they say, before the wiring is installed usually prevents mistakes. The wiring, especially that part which brings the current into the buildings, should be large enough at the start to carry the greatest amount of current that will ever be needed. The replacing of wiring systems from a small to a larger one is expensive and often causes a delay in electrical service, they point out. Conveniences that could be enjoyed daily and used with profit must often be sacrificed because the load of the wiring system does not permit their use.

They say that three things should mark a wiring system: safety, adequateness and convenience. And a good plan, well executed by a good contractor, with a certificate of inspection and approval from the national board of fire underwriters, should insure an adequate and thoroughly safe wiring system.

A revised Cornell bulletin, E-204, presents some of the modern ideas and practices in wiring that may be applied to the needs of farm and home. Copies may be had from the New York state college of agriculture at Ithaca, N. Y.

New York Boosts Egg Shipments

C. R. Plumb Warns Poultrymen That Cooperative Grading and Sales Are Necessary to Meet Western Competition.

New York State poultrymen cannot hope to compete with the great organizations of the west unless cooperative groups are organized to handle and grade New York eggs, warns C. R. Plumb, Director of the Bureau of Food Control of the New York State Department of Agriculture and Markets. But first, he says, a sufficient number of New York poultrymen must signify their willingness to produce superior quality eggs.

Receipts of eggs at New York City from New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania increased nearly 45 per cent in 1933 compared to receipts in 1932. For New York State, that gain was nearly 70 per cent, or from 354,000 cases in 1932 to 600,000 cases in 1933. New York shipments continued to gain for the first nine months of 1934 with 615,000 cases compared with 505,000 cases for the same period of 1933, he says.

Many poultrymen get premium prices of from two to ten cents a dozen from consumers who want fine quality and are willing to pay for it. Poultrymen are not required by law to label or sell eggs according to grade and unlabeled eggs usually sell at a low grade price. However, Director Plumb points out, if the eggs were properly handled and graded, a large portion could be sold at premium prices as Fancy, or Grade A. Fresh.

Premium markets may be maintained the year-around but New York's greatest loss comes in spring and early summer when quantities of eggs are stored. Storage buyers give both preference and premiums to western graded eggs although the western eggs are more than two weeks old at the time of arrival in New York. To gain such a market, New York poultrymen must give attention to quality and establish a state reputation for the buyers demand concentrated volume, uniformly good quality, dependability, clean and unfertile eggs which are guaranteed.

Plan For The Hatching Season

By A. G. Phillips

The successful hatching of eggs is greatly influenced by the condition of the flock that does the laying. Birds lay eggs in order to reproduce their kind—not in order that man may have a desirable food product. It is natural for them to be in the best of condition in the springtime or the normal reproductive season. One splendid measuring stick of the physical state of laying poultry is the way in which their eggs hatch in the incubator.

Our domestication of poultry has demanded good egg production thru the fall and winted months prior to the hatching season. If feeding and management during this time is not what it should be, the results in the spring are unfavorable. We cannot wait until January to plan any program that will increase the hatchability of eggs. It must be done in the fall.

The poultryman depends upon both hens and pullets for his hatching eggs. These two groups should be handled differently between now and January 1st. As they cease production and go into a molt, hens will do best if housed in separate quarters, away from pullets, and allowed to take a vacation, grow new feathers, and build up a reserve of fat and flesh. They may be allowed to run out-of-doors when they so desire and may be given plenty of hard grain and a smaller supply of laying mash. No attempt need be made to encourage heavy feed consumption. Sometime between December 15 and January 15 they will be ready to lay and at that time can be put onto the regular egg production program, which includes plenty of mash.

Pullets that are expected to produce hatching eggs must be watched carefully and every attempt made to prevent loss in weight or body exhaustion. They must be in as good condition in January as in October—a thing that is not always easily accomplished. This can be made possible through good housing, capable management and proper feeding.

At no time must the total intake of feed be skimped or allowed to diminish in quantity. Keep the appetite of the birds in good shape and get every pound of feed into them that they will take. They cannot endure cold weather and continue in egg production if they are short of body fuel. Any one of a number of schemes may be practical in order to maintain appetite and good health.

Mash and grain are necessary in the fall ration—plenty of both. Early in the fall pullets will consume mash in sufficient quantities, but if they start laying in October we often find it desirable to offer a wet mash to which sardine oil has been added, once a day (at noon) after the middle of November. This is appetizing, easily digested, and may help to hold up consumption to the maximum.

Handle the laying flocks from which hatching eggs are to be procured in just as careful a manner during the fall as in the late winter just prior to the reproducing season.

Sees Comfortable Cold Waves Ahead

A. D. Barlow of Otisville, Orange County, has a basement stable. It has always been a warm stable because the walls on the west and on the north are banked almost to the top. The south side is open to the sun and is protected from the west wind by a shed.

However, says Professor A. M. Goodman of the New York state college of agriculture, Mr. Barlow has had all the troubles in trying to keep the stable dry and free from drafts that other dairymen have experienced who try to ventilate their stables through doors, windows and hay chutes.

So, after discussing the problem with the Orange county farm bureau manager, Mr. Barlow decided to install a real ventilation system in his stable. And he did it. Now he looks forward to a winter with much more comfort to himself and his stock than ever before, Professor Goodman states, and adds that unless this ventilation behaves very differently from the many that have been built throughout the state, Mr. Barlow will not be disappointed.

Other dairymen may need the same kind of ventilation system so that the stable will be warm and the air fresh and good to breathe. They may obtain a copy of a new edition of Cornell bulletin E-151. A penny post card to the New York state college of agriculture at Ithaca, N. Y., brings it.

Special Services In Addison Mark Observance of Churches

Program of Union Service Given Over to Significance of Christmas—Midnight Services at St. Catherine's and Church of Redeemer—Christmas Carols Feature Musical Programs.

Special services in all the Addison churches featured the observance of Christmas. Midnight mass was celebrated at St. Catherine's Church, nearly every seat in the large edifice being occupied. Two addition masses, at nine and ten thirty o'clock, were celebrated on Christmas morning. At the Church of the Redeemer, midnight services were also held. Special programs were the order of the day at the Baptist, Methodist and Presbyterian churches. The Sunday evening union service, held in the First Methodist Episcopal Church, centered around the significance of this great feast of the Christian calendar and the importance of Christ's coming.

Programs as carried out by the various congregations were as follows:

Union Services

Members of the Baptist, Methodist and Presbyterian congregations united in a union Christmas carol service Sunday evening at the First Methodist Episcopal Church. The service was well attended.

At seven o'clock carols were sung in front of the church by a group from the choirs of the three churches. Those taking part were: Mrs. Edgar Dann, Miss Betty Perry, Miss Betty Pepper, Miss Alice Magoon, Miss Ruth Dininny, Miss Edith Howland, Fay Axtell, Mrs. Edward Watkins, Miss Louise Watkins, Miss Helen Kneaskern, Mrs. Harold Wilson, Bert Rouse, the Rev. Kenneth E. Arnold, the Rev. J. V. Axtell and the Rev. Ralph Webb.

At seven-thirty inside the church the hymn, "Angels From the Realms" was sung, illustrated slides being thrown on a screen in the front of the church by Wilbur Bulkley and Robert Dykins who operated the machine in the rear. The Methodist choir, directed by Mrs. Harold Wilson and consisting of Mrs. Edgar Dann, Miss Edith Howland, Miss Louise Watkins, Miss Betty Pepper, Miss Helen Kneaskern, Mrs. Edward Watkins and Bert Rouse, then sang "Christmas Starlight". Prayer was offered by the Rev. Ralph Webb, followed by scriptural readings given by the Rev. Mr. Arnold and the Rev. Mr. Axtell.

"The Other Wise Man", by Henry Van Dyke, was read by the Rev. Ralph Webb, pictures on the screen accompanying the reading. The story relates in a most impressive way the experiences of Arabant, who had planned to join with the wise men on the trip to Bethlehem to adore the new-born Saviour. Stopping on the way, however, to assist a stricken traveler, he was delayed in reaching Bethlehem before the departure of the holy family. For thirty-three years the "other wise man" went on his way ever doing good and still denied the privilege of seeing the new-born King. Happening near the scene of the crucifixion on the day of Christ's death, he felt at last that his quest of years would be rewarded. But again misfortune overtook him. As death intervened, the voice of the Lord was heard to say: "Inasmuch as you have done it to the least of these, My little ones, you have done it unto Me."

In closing, "When I Survey the Wondrous Cross" was sung by the Rev. Mr. Arnold and the Rev. Mr. Webb. Benediction was offered by the Rev. Mr. Axtell.

Baptist

Piano prelude, Christmas Fantasia", Mrs. Ivan Tompkins; doxology, congregation; invocation, the Rev. Kenneth E. Arnold; "Gloria Patri", congregation; responsive reading; magnificat; hymn, "It Came Upon the Midnight Clear"; scripture, Luke 1:26-35 2:25-40; Moffett's translation, having to do with the annunciation of Christ's birth to Mary and the expressions of rejoicing by Simeon, the prophet, and Anna, the prophetess.

Hymn, "Hark, the Herald Angels Sing"; prayer, the Rev. Kenneth E. Arnold; piano solo, "Christmas Bells", Mrs. Tompkins; announcements; offering; violin solo,"Gesu, Bambino, (Baby Jesus) the Rev. Mr. Arnold accompanied by Mrs. Tompkins; "The Christmas Story in Music" was then presented in the form of musical selections, some vocal, some instrumental, with Bible readings between. It began with an instrumental trio of Christmas carols: "Once in Royal David's City"; "Joy to the Word" and "Adeste Fideles", played by Francis Jones, Beverly J. Stauffer and Mrs. Tompkins, on cornet, trombone and piano respectively; a cornet solo, "O, Little Town of Bethlehem" was rendered by Francis Jones. "Silent Night, Holy Night" was sung by Miss Ruth Dense, with violin obligato. Another solo, "Away in a Manger", was sung by Mrs. Beverly Stauffer and "We, Three Kings of Orient Are" was sung by Miss Leanore Runyan. During the presentation of the Christmas story, miniatures of the stable, the manger, Mary, Joseph, etc., were shown by the Rev. Mr. Arnold. The singing of a hymn and the postlude brought the service to a close.

Chorus numbers during the Christmas story were: "King Is He", "Star of Bethlehem", "The Christmas Song", "The Advent Song", "Angel Voices", "Out of the East", "What Christmas Brings" and "His Name Emanuel". Members of the chorus were: Miss Ruth Dense, Miss Bernice Aumick, Mrs. Beverly Stauffer, Miss Leanore Runyan, Carlton Ford and the Rev. Mr. Arnold.

Methodist Episcopal

The following Christmas program was held Sunday morning in the First Methodist Episcopal Church:

Organ prelude; anthem, "Joy Bells Are Ringing"; hymn, "Joy to the World"; call to worship; unison prayer; responsive reading; "Gloria Patri"; affirmation of faith; scriptural reading—Luke 2:1-20; prayer.

Solo, "In Old Judea", Miss Madeline Short; offertory; announcements; duet, "Christmas Starlight", Mrs. Edgar Dann and Mrs. Rolland Dininny; hymn, "While Shepherds Watched"; sermon, "The Sweetest Story Ever Told", by the Rev. Ralph Webb; anthem, "The Bethlehem Star"; hymn, "O, Little Town of Bethlehem"; benediction; meditation; postlude.

Presbyterian

A special Christmas program was held Sunday morning at the First Presbyterian Church as follows:

Organ prelude, Miss Jane Elizabeth Long at the console; call to prayer, choir; invocation; Lord's prayer, choir; scripture, Luke 2:8-20; hymn, "O, Come, All Ye Faithful"; psalter, 57; Gloria Patri; pastoral prayer, choral response; legendary Christmas carols, choir; hymn, "Joy to the World"; announcements; call to worship; offertory; solo. "Cantique De Noel", F. T. Axtell; hymn, "Oh, Jesus, When I think of Thee"; benediction, choir; silent prayer; organ postlude.

St. Catherine's

Midnight mass was celebrated by the Rev. Francis T. Moffett at St. Catherine's Church Monday night.

The musical program was as follows:

"Silent Night, Holy Night", Gloria Vona, Ralph Vona; kyrie eleison, choir; "Gloria", choir; solo, John Croft; "Credo", choir; solo, "Et Incarnatus Est", John Croft; offertory; "Adeste Fideles", John Croft, Mrs. Julia Train; "Sanctus, Benedictus, Agnus Dei", John Croft; "It Came Upon the Midnight Clear", Gloria Vona and Ralph Vona.

The organ was played by Mrs. Francis Hill. Violin accompaniment to "Silent Night" and "Adeste Fideles", was played by James Moffett. Members of the choir were: Elmer Knepley, Francis Hill, John Croft, John Flynn, William Edwards, Mrs. Julia Train and Miss Martha Ginnane.
